

Scranton Backs Income Tax Ban

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton said Monday that if a constitutional convention is authorized at the Nov. 5 state-wide balloting, Pennsylvania voters should elect delegates who would impose a ban on a graduated income tax.

The governor told members of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania there is no specific barrier to a graduated income tax under the present constitution, adopted in 1874.

Scranton said such a tax has been banned in the Commonwealth only because the state supreme court ruled it unconstitutional, saying it violates the section on uniformity of taxes.

A minor change in the political complexion of the supreme court could reverse that decision, the governor stated.

U.S. Cuts Aid To Viet Nam Unit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said Monday the United States will give no more aid to an elite corps of Vietnamese airborne troops until they are assigned to field duty against Communist guerrillas.

In addition to military assistance, these forces have been receiving about $300,000 a month in extra pay from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for special anti-guerrilla warfare.

Commanded by Col. Le Quang Tung under the top leadership of Ngo Dinh Nhu, the corps was placed on special duty in August and led the government raids against Buddhist pagodas.

Jersey Woods Closed To Public

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Richard J. Hughes closed New Jersey's woods to the public Monday and suspended all hunting and fishing until the state's parched woodlands get a soaking rain.

The action came on the heels of a declaration of emergency by the governor Saturday in which Hughes prohibited disposing of cigarettes, cigars or other smoldering material in or near any wooded area.

New Jersey is in the midst of the bow and arrow deer season now.

Mafia Boss Wins Trial Review

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vito Genovese, 66, reputed leader of the nationwide crime syndicate Cosa Nostra, won court review of the narcotics conviction that sent him to prison.

The Supreme Court on Monday told the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York to consider a contention by Genovese and nine others sentenced with him that notes of pretrial interviews with the government's main witness were wrongfully withheld from the defense during their trial.

Storm Threatens Big Troop Lift

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP)—Head winds from a hurricane developing off the Atlantic Coast Monday night threatened possible disruption of "Exercise Big Lift" flight schedules.

Gen. Paul D. Adams, chief of the strike command, who is running the historic trans-Atlantic airlift of 16,000 soldiers and airmen, told reporters some of the carefully planned flights of more than 200 transport planes may be affected.

Senate Passes College Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted Monday to authorize a five-year, $1.9-billion program of federal aid for college construction, but sponsors fear the House may object to one of its provisions.

This is an amendment giving specific permission for a taxpayer's suit to test the constitutionality of any grant or loan to a religious college.

Stock Market

NEW YORK AP—Cross trends prevailed on the New York Stock Exchange Monday. Declines outnumbered advances but popular averages made new historic peaks.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.71 to close at another record of 752.31.

Volume was 5.46 million shares compared with 5.84 million Friday.

U.S. Calls Steelmen To Court

State Outdoor Ban Cuts Forest Fires

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's ban on hunting, fishing, smoking and fires in fields and woodlands appear to be having good results in reducing the number of forest fires, a state official said Monday.

But the situation still is critical as the state headed into its fourth week without appreciable rain, added Samuel S. Cobb, chief of forest protection for the Department of Forests and Waters.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said it sees no substantial rain in sight for at least two or three days.

"Beyond that we just can't predict," said meteorologist Paul Sutton.

Shrinking public water supplies continued to plague many communities throughout the state.

The U. S. Army Depot at New Cumberland issued piping and emergency pumping equipment from civil defense stockpiles to four more communities—Lock Haven, Mercersburg and Saxton, Pa., and Myersville, Md.

New Forest Fires
Cobb said there were 49 new fires last Friday, 34 Saturday and 27 Sunday.

"But all those fires have to be classed as something extra because the normal forest fire season usually begins about now and lasts until the first snowfall in November or December," he added.

There have been 456 fires so far in October, destroying an estimated 10,000 acres out of the state's total of 15 million acres—more than half its land area—of forest land.

Fish and game commissions and state police have stepped up their patrol activities to enforce the recent ban.

However, no violations have been reported thus far to state headquarters.

$100 Fine
Violators are subject to fines of $100. In addition, any one proved responsible for a fire through negligence or malice is subject to other penalties including the cost of extinguishing the fires. They also are subject to suits for civil damages from property owners.

Officials of the fish and game commissions said they have found good acceptance of the bans, despite the fact that the prime hunting and fishing seasons have been suspended indefinitely.

A Game Commission official, Deputy Director Glenn Bowers, expressed concern over the loss of revenue from hunting license sales, which have virtually ceased.

Laymen Rule New Board Governing State Education

HARRISBURG (AP) The new state Board of Education will convene Tuesday in an atmosphere of anticipation and apprehension.

Public support and direction of education will be at the threshold of a new area as the board meets to organize.

The board, with its component councils of basic and higher education, represents a triumph of new attitudes towards the state's multi-million-dollar involvement in education.

Laymen In Charge
The most evident change in attitude was the deliberate emphasis on lay direction. By law, only two educators sit on each of the seven-member councils and there are none among the three at-large members who complete the complement of 17 board members.

The Department of Public Instruction becomes, in theory, an instrument of the board whereas the old nine-member council of education which the board replaces, had become an instrument of the department.

The board's council system gives the higher education institutions an equal voice with the elementary and secondary schools.

The old council was more concerned with the problems of basic education.

Favorable Reaction
The reaction among educators generally has been favorable to both the new board system and Gov. Scranton's appointments.

The seven members of the Council of Higher Education, especially, are considered excellent choices and Charles G. Simpson, utility executive from Philadelphia, is considered an able selection as the council's chairman.

The reaction to the Council of Basic Education is somewhat more reserved, although the choice of Mrs. Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia civic leader who has had considerable experience in education, was well received.

The other members of the council are to some extent unknown quantities.

Educators who hoped for strong direction on the nettlesome compulsory school reorganization issue aren't sure which way the council is going to go on that issue. Neither, for that matter, are those who favor a soft approach.

Reorganization
While the whole board has the assignment to set standards for the new school reorganization law, it will be the council of basic education's job to implement them.

In any event, the activation of the board ends a long period of stagnation at the formal policy-making level of public education. The law creating the board became effective June 17. The old council ceased to exist on that date.

One Subpoenaed On Price Increases

NEW YORK (AP)—Several big steel companies were subpoenaed before a federal grand jury in New York Monday. A spokesman for one said its subpoena concerned price increases.

So tight-lipped were the companies and the government that no attributable confirmation even of the subject matter could be obtained quickly.

President Kennedy, at a news conference 10 days ago, expressed concern over a ripple of price increases in steel and some other industries, and said they were being watched very carefully.

At the time he hinted no repetition of the grand jury inquiry launched in April 1962 as part of an administration move to roll back an across-the-board steel price increase.

Companies confirming receipt of subpoenas were U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, second-ranking Bethlehem Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Republic Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. and National Steel Corp., all among the eight largest.

Wheeling Steel Corp., 11th ranked producer and the firm that started this year's rises, also confirmed it had been subpoenaed.

9 Counties In 'Drought Disaster'

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton certified nine counties Monday as "emergency disaster areas" due to the severe drought conditions presently gripping the state.

The counties are: Allegheny, Butler, Cambria, Clinton, Crawford, Indiana, Luzerne, Mercer and Westmoreland.

Scranton wrote U. S. Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman that he took the action on the recommendation of the State Disaster Committee, adding:

"I request that the above counties be designated as emergency disaster areas in order to qualify for and receive aid under the emergency livestock feed program through June 30, 1964."

If the aid is granted, farmers in these counties would be allowed to buy surplus feed grain from the federal Commodity Credit Corp. stores at 70 percent of the cost to the government.

Scranton also certified "the need for special permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow railroads to offer reduced freight rates."

Congress May Cut Kinzua Dam Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed Monday and sent to a possible bleak future in the Senate a compromise bill designed to break a deadlock which threatens to halt construction of the Kinzua, Pa., dam and reservoir.

The bill would authorize additional spending on flood control and navigation projects in seven river basins, including the Ohio with its Allegheny River dam and reservoir at Kinzua.

The Delaware River Basin and the Tocks Island Dam were not included in the bill.

The Army Engineers are fast approaching the spending ceiling fixed by Congress in the seven basins and the Engineers plan to halt work soon unless new spending authority is approved.

The compromise bill is designed to raise the spending ceiling and permit continued work at Kinzua and 54 other locations in the seven basins.

But chairman Pat McNamara, D-Mich., of the Senate Public Works Committee, said the measure would accomplish nothing.

At the heart of the deadlock are nine controversial projects which the Senate approved as part of a river basin bill. An objection in the House prevented this measure from going to a Senate-House conference committee to iron out differences.

Congress has already authorized construction of the $109 million Kinzua Dam and the Army has requested $21,227,000 for work during the fiscal year which began last July 1.

Although Congress has not yet approved the public works money bill, the Army Engineers have been authorized to continue spending at last year's level so long as they don't exceed the ceilings fixed in previous river basin legislation.

The bill approved by the House would authorize an additional $47 million for the Ohio River basin.

Bensinger Urges Tocks Action To Halt Real Estate Boom

By Robert S. Van Fleet
Chief, Ottawa News Service

POCONO MANOR — A warning that a booming business in the sale of real estate is inflating the future land acquisition costs of the Tocks Island Recreation area was issued yesterday by the president of the Delaware River Basin.

Charles R. Bensinger of Stroudsburg, the association president, gave the warning as he joined Pennsylvania Forests and Waters Secretary Maurice K. Goddard in urging prompt action to save land for public purposes.

In Goddard's case, the plea was for an affirmative vote Nov. 5 on a constitutional amendment to launch Project 70, the state's $70 million park and open space program.

In Bensinger's case, he was asking for quick action in Washington on a $250,000 appropriation to permit the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin design and engineering studies for the 3,200-foot dam north of Delaware Water Gap.

Bensinger said much land in what will be the Tocks Island project is being bought by real estate developers, and some of it resold at considerable profit.

Land Boom
The land is going fast, he said. One realtor reportedly sold 45 lots in a single weekend about two weeks ago, said Bensinger, a Stroudsburg attorney. He did not identify the real estate operator.

"In the immediate Tocks Island Recreation area," he said, "land that sold for $3 a acre, then $10, and now $100, is going to developers."

He said another developer sold "over $100,000 worth of land in two months." The association president said later in response to questions that the land was not in the area to be inundated, but in adjacent sectors that will be part of the recreation or wildlife lands to be acquired for public purposes.

Both Bensinger and Goddard were urging speed to get public projects under way.

Annual Conference
The statements were made at the annual Delaware River Basin Water Resources Conference, sponsored at Pocono Manor Inn by the Delaware River Basin Commission and the Water Resources Association.

The two-day session was opened yesterday with a report by James F. Wright, executive director of the commission, who called the Tocks Island project the "showpiece" of the entire Delaware River development program.

Wright said land acquisition might begin in 1967 if Congress appropriates the $250,000 requested earlier this year by President Kennedy.

Attending the meetings are representatives of Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, and New York, and the federal government, the five parties to the compact under which the commission was established in 1961.

Annual Report
The annual report, covering operations under a $530,000 budget, is presented to "the people of the basin" and to Congress and the Legislatures of the four states.

Distributed at the session were copies of a new $547,000 budget for the commission's operations during fiscal 1965 beginning next July 1. The current budget is $530,000 for the work of the 36-member staff.

Major contributors to the commission's budget are the federal government, $147,000; Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York, $117,000 each; and Delaware, $16,000.

Wright reviewed plans for the Tocks Island project, pointing out that economically it would have a tremendous impact on the Stroudsburg-to-Port Jervis area it would serve.

It will be "quite a mover and shaker before we're through with it," he said.

He gave the following breakdown of the total cost of $122 million:

Flood control, $14.2 million; water supply, $28.5 million; conventional power, $21.5 million; and recreation, $58.2 million.

He said these figures included a conventional installation for hydro-power to produce an average of 28.5 million kilowatt hours a year, but it excluded a possible pumped-storage hydro-electric facility with a potential output of 732 million kilowatt hours a year.

Tocks 'Showpiece'

Wright said the Tocks Island project was the showpiece of the over-all Delaware River Basin plan because "it has a close association with the Delaware Water Gap, since the dam is to be erected only a few miles north of that landmark on the river's main stem."

"It is the largest and most costly project in the plan, and the only one for which hydro-electric power generation is now proposed."

"Its 100-mile shoreline will be encircled by the first major national recreation area in the eastern United States if a Congressional proposal is enacted to implement a National Park Service recommendation."

"It will be a large contributor to the over-all flood protection foreseen for the basin, as well as a major water supply source."

The multiple-purpose project is designed for flood control, major water supply, power, and recreation facilities.

$45 Million Tourist Boom

Wright's figures forecast a $45-million-a-year tourist industry. He said it was estimated that 7 million people a year would visit the area, each pumping about $650 into the economy.

The reservoir site is within 100 miles — two hours' driving time — from the homes of an estimated 30 million people.

Other Speakers
Also on the program yesterday:

Robert A. Roe, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, who discussed the two-year-old, $80 million "Green Acres" program that is a counterpart of Pennsylvania's Project 70.

Col. Elmer P. Yates, Philadelphia district engineer, U.S.

Army Corps of Engineers, who reported on the progress made in the Lehigh River flood control plan, including enlargement of the Beltzville Dam near Lehigh.

Today's program will conclude with a banquet address tonight by U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania.

Also on the program during the day will be Arthur C. Ford, president of the New York City Board of Water Supply; Robert Struble of West Chester, president of the Delaware River Watersheds Assn.; Henry Caulfield of the U.S. Department of the Interior; Lloyd Partain of the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and Herbert A. Howlett, chief of planning, Delaware River Basin Commission.

Drought Drops Delaware

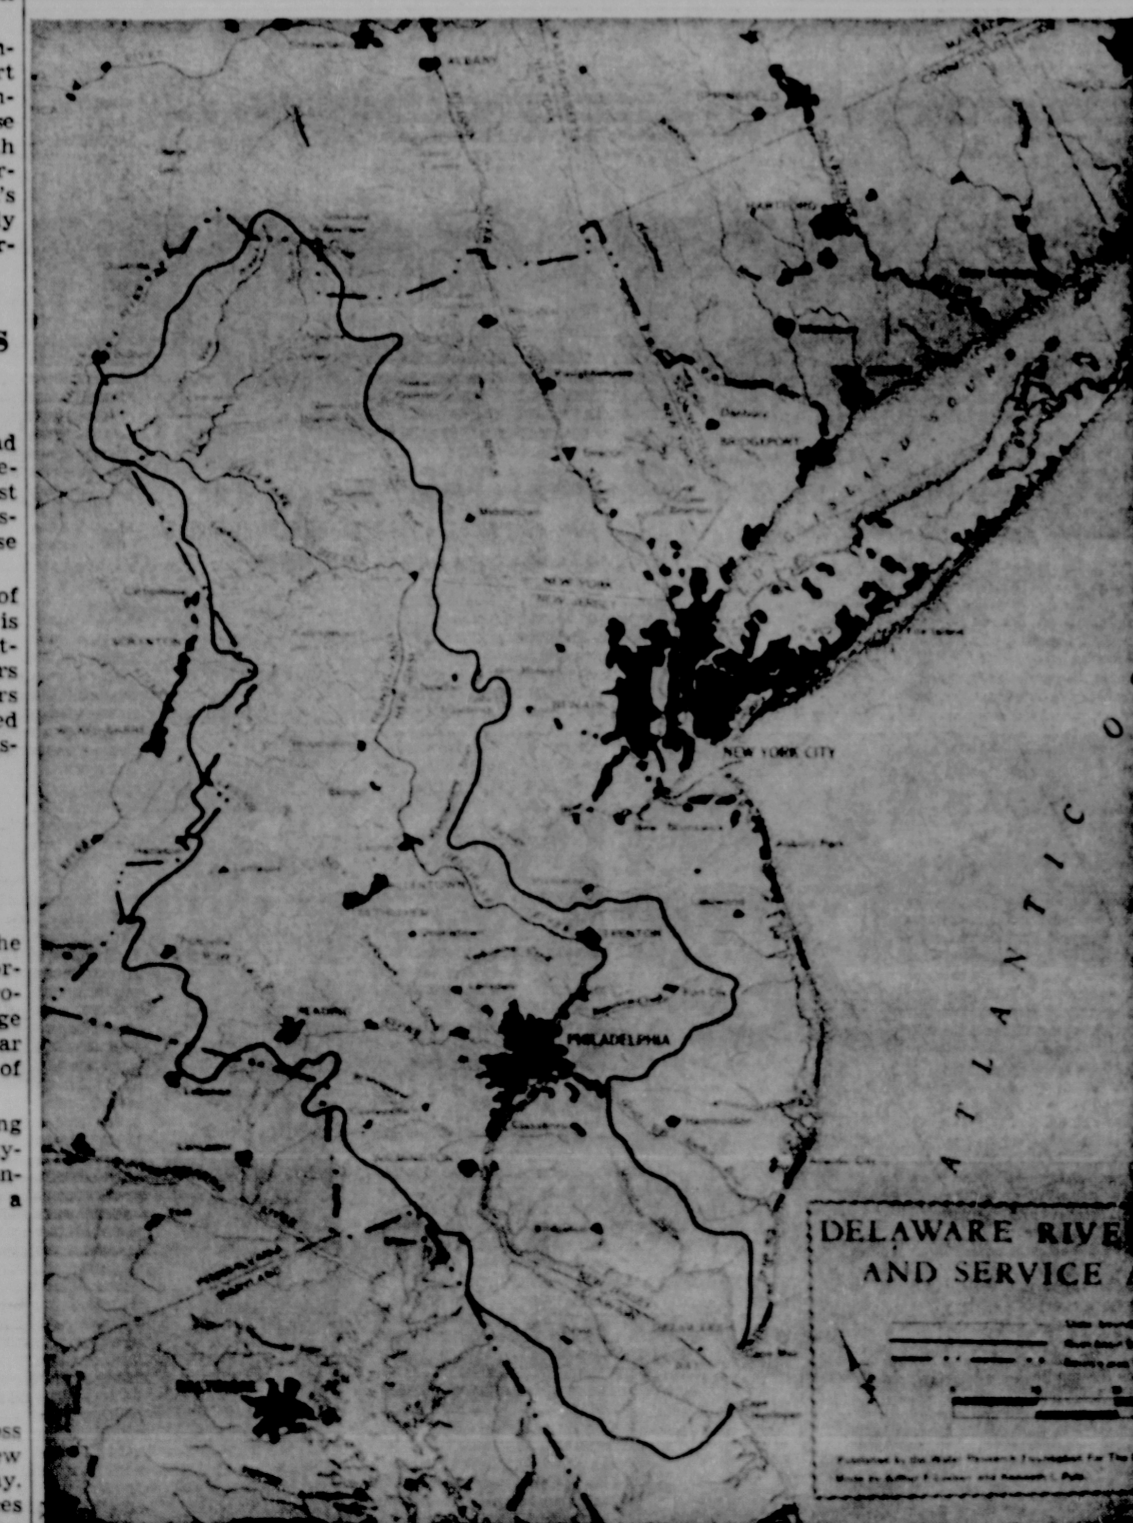

MILFORD—Water in the Delaware River dropped to its lowest level Sunday since October, 1957, at the Milford gauging station as New York City reservoirs on the upper Delaware neared their point of maximum depletion.

Robert Fish, deputy river master for the U. S. Geological Survey at Milford, reported yesterday that average river flow at Milford Sunday dropped to 911 cubic feet per second nearing its October, 1957, low of 886 c. f. s.

He said the current drought had reduced average river flow at Milford for the first 20 days of October to 1,419 c. f. s. —1,000 c. f. s. below the 1,525 c. f. s. set as a "desirable" minimum flow at Milford by a U. S. Supreme Court decision June 7, 1954, which regulated New York City use of Delaware River water.

Fish also reported that the Neversink Reservoir fell Monday to four tenths of one per cent of its total capacity of 35.3 billion gallons with only 135 million gallons of water left. The Pepacton Reservoir was down to 5.7 per cent of its 143.7 billion gallon capacity with only 7.9 billion gallons of water left.

The Neversink Reservoir is at the head of the Neversink River which joins the Delaware River at Port Jervis. The Pepacton Reservoir is on the East Branch of the upper Delaware River. Both New York City water supply reservoirs are a major source of water releases needed to maintain river flow at Milford.

DELAWARE RIVER BASIN—Winding black line shows the Delaware River basin and watershed area from Delaware Bay below Philadelphia north to New York water supply reservoirs in New York State. Development of the basin is the subject of two-day conference which began yesterday at Pocono Manor.

Candidate Says Life Threatened

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — The Republican candidate for mayor of Altoona said Monday his life has been threatened in an anonymous telephone call.

William Prosser said his wife answered the call Sunday night. He said he wasn't home.

According to Mrs. Prosser, a man obviously disguising his voice asked for Prosser and when he wasn't there said:

"He better be out of town by tomorrow (Monday), or I'm going to kill him."

Mrs. Prosser immediately called police who searched the neighborhood and found nothing. Prosser said he was more concerned for his family than for himself.

Fires Plague Johnstown Area

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — O.L. Mulhollen, head of the Galitzin Forestry District, said Monday there were 50 fires in the district, each with the potential to burn out of control.

Three extra state foresters have been dispatched to the district, comprised of Cambria, Indiana, and Blair counties and part of Clearfield County.

Mulhollen said that since the latter part of September 83 fires, including the 50 burning Monday, have swept over about 3,000 acres of brush and timberland in the district.

Anti-Dam Committee Sees Hope In Tocks Island Fight

BUSHKILL — The failure of appropriations for Tocks Island Dam to be included in the "pork barrel bill" passed by Congress in the fall of 1962, was listed as the most significant development to date at a recent meeting of the Anti-Dam Committee in Bushkill.

Newly elected officers of the committee are Henry R. Schnitzer of Bushkill and Bayonne, N. J., president-treasurer; Mrs. Harriet T. Close of Shawne-on - Delaware, secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Shukaitis of East Stroudsburg RD 1, chairman of its research committee.

The committee is working against the realization of the Tocks Island Project. It is against the building of large dams in general because "they will become obsolete in a period of 50 years because of siltation and because they are also self - defective because of the high rate of evaporation," a recent news release stated.

The proposed Tocks Island will be a 37-mile long reservoir that will be ringed by a 50-mile park and will, according to the committee, "consume the richest, most fertile, most productive land in Pennsylvania whereas, other sections of the Delaware Valley with barren low-potential acreage have been ignored for political reasons."

The group concerns itself with decreasing the cost of government and government spending by way of the pork-barrel or other bureaucratic means of gain for the few who promote similar "overwhelming" projects, according to Mrs. Close.

Those interested in joining the Anti-Dam Committee may contact officers and they will be notified of future meetings.

Area Men Injured In Triple Crash

LEHIGHTON — Three Stroudsburg - area men were among four persons injured in a three-vehicle accident at the Normal Square Intersection of Route 443 in Franklin Township at 8:50 a.m. yesterday.

Norman Mertz, township police chief, said a tractor-trailer operated by Harry B. Hartung, Jr., 28, of 70 Ransberry Ave., East Stroudsburg, and owned by John R. Lesoine, 1870 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, had stopped for a traffic light when it was rammed in the rear by a tractor-trailer driven by Martin Wingert, 24, of Lehigh, RD 1.

The impact pushed Hartung's tractor-trailer forward and it struck a station wagon operated by Robert W. Stemler, 65, of Bowmanstown, as it emerged from a side road.

Hartung was treated at Gnadent-Huettner Hospital for a head cut and neck and back injuries. Wingert was treated for a head cut and injuries of the neck, back and right leg.

Two passengers in Hartung's vehicle were admitted to the hospital. They are Lloyd C. Penner, 28, of 213 Wallace St., Stroudsburg, head, neck and back injuries, and James Bishop, 25, of Cherry Valley, back and head injuries. Stemler was not hurt.

Damages to Stemler's station wagon were estimated at $300. Mertz said Hartung's vehicle suffered extensive damages and Wingert's was demolished.

CD Plans Course On Explosives

STROUDSBURG — Members of the Monroe County Civil Defense unit will be offered a basic eight-hour course on explosive ordinance reconnaissance at East Stroudsburg Junior-Senior High School this Friday and Saturday.

Instructors for the course will be personnel from the U.S. Army, 69th Ordnance Detachment of Valley Forge General Hospital. The first session will be held Friday, from 7 to 10 p.m. Course hours for Saturday will be discussed during the Friday session, according to Kenneth C. Banzhof, chief of the Security and Intelligence Division for the local CD unit.

The course will instruct local CD personnel in safety procedures and reporting of explosive or nuclear hazards. It will include the location, identification, diagnosis, verification, initial evacuation and protective works connected with such blasts.

"Explosive ordinance reconnaissance is normally the responsibility of the police service; consequently, it is recommended that regular, fire and auxiliary police take this training. It is also recommended for rescue teams," said Banzhof.

Registration forms can be obtained from the Monroe County Civil Defense in Room 7 in the Court House in Stroudsburg.

In other business the commissioners interviewed several persons requesting county aid. The bid was approved to those meeting the requirements.

H. Ray Saunders, chief clerk, told the commissioners that employees of Tillman Hawk and Son, well drillers from Cresco, started drilling a well at the courthouse. The well is to be used as an emergency water supply and will tie in with the emergency control center in the basement of the courthouse.

Need For Public Swimming Facilities

Barrett Twp. Group Seeks Community Swimming Pool

Editor's Note—Discussion on a proposed community swimming pool in Barrett Township has reached a peak. With information supplied by pool companies, the board of township supervisors, the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce and the United States Census Bureau, facts have been gathered and compared.

Members of the Barrett Junior Women's Club, working with civic leaders, have correlated these facts and information and mapped out a plan of action which would result in the building of a community swimming pool, with numerous additional facilities to be added in the future.

To discover the "grass roots" feeling of residents, the Junior Women have received permission to ask two questions of voters as they approach the polls on Nov. 5. The information will decide the future of a community pool for the township.

Each voter will be asked the following questions: "Are you in favor of a township-owned community swimming pool, which is tax-supported?" And, "Will you sign a petition asking that this subject be placed on the 1964 primary ballot?"

This is the first of a series of three articles containing information concerning the project to be presented by The Daily Record, as reference data for voters to discuss and on which they will base their answers.

BARRETT — A community swimming pool has been the dream of Barrett Township for a number of years. In the past, efforts have been made, and strides taken which have laid groundwork for the realization of this dream.

During the past 10 years, the Eastern portion of the United States has become a rabbit warren of pools. Communities with populations similar to that of Barrett and some larger, have financed and built pools which pay for their own operational expenses.

Charles Geissinger, 10 years ago in Barrett, served on the board of supervisors. He also acted as a civic leader and through his efforts, the residents set aside a sum of nearly $5,000 which was to be used for a community pool.

In conjunction with that sum, other civic organizations have raised funds and set monies aside to be used for a community pool. This reservoir of money is the basis for a community effort which can result in the recreational and economic improvement of the area.

Of the more than 2,000 year-round residents, more than 1,500 have no safe public place to swim. For vacationers at small resorts (hotels and motels there are no public facilities available either.

For swimmers, there is no question of the need for such a community facility—a safe place to swim—a place for children to learn to swim and a supervised program of water sports with racing and water carnivals, are possibilities.

The non-swimmer must be reminded that although direct use of such a facility by them may not be expected, adjoining recreation areas with picnicking usage, playground areas and snack bar would be an attraction.

Obviously, the construction of a community swimming pool is an investment in health, happiness and personal safety. Children, duck-like, take to any body of water larger than a bathtub. In an area full of resorts with pools for their guests, children want to swim. At present, there is no supervised public place to swim and drowning accidents can occur. In areas not operated from the point of view of sanitation, diseases are passed from child to child, with a spirit of sharing their parents didn't have in mind.

Of equal importance is the economic effect a community pool and recreation area would have on the community at large. The drawing card of a public swimming pool with associated recreational facilities has been shown in other communities. Such improvements are considered an indication of community pride.

The two-fold benefits of a public swimming pool, those of health and economics, have priority in any program planned for a community. One definite indication of the need for a development of this plan is the fact that in the past 10 years, the population of the township has risen only nine per cent. One of the causes of such a small increase in what is otherwise a growing community is the lack of recreational facilities available to residents.

New industries and new families don't consider an area which is rich in attractions for tourists, but has little or nothing to offer year-round residents. This same attitude applies to young families who have lived in this area and have moved on to communities which can offer these things.

The result is that Barrett Township is dependent on a fluctuating economy for a year-round livelihood. To turn this to the opposite side of the coin, with community effort and community spirit, Barrett Township can build on efforts made in the past and realize a dream which will have direct benefits: a safe clean place to swim and supervised recreation. The indirect benefits, of equal importance, are more year-round residents moving into the area and businesses attracted by the availability of recreation for employees leisure time.

There is no better time to choose that long talked of memorial than now while all concerned are here to give it careful thought.

PM Chamber Asks Revival Of Memorial Parkway Plan

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Mountain Memorial Parkway was brought back to life yesterday.

The Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce board of directors unanimously voted a resolution urging Gov. William Scranton to reappoint R. LeRoy Gengler, Mt. Pocono Republican, and Frank B. Michaels, Stroudsburg Democrat to the parkway commission.

The commission was established in 1941 under legislation sponsored by former State Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe of Stroudsburg.

World War II and the Korean War halted plans until 1954 when Republican Gov. John S. Fine appointed Michaels, Dengler and Joseph Lawler, then state secretary of highways to the three-man parkway commission.

According to Dengler, Democratic Gov. George M. Leader then refused to the state senate for confirmation and the parkway died again.

In September, Dengler led a delegation to see Republican Gov. Scranton about the parkway. According to Dengler, Scranton then asked Henry D. Harral, state highway secretary, to prepare a feasibility report and cost estimate.

In 1945 the state highway department prepared plans for the 70-mile highway from Mt. Effort in the West End of Monroe County to Mt. Pocono, Canadiansis, Pecks Pond and Milford in Pike County. The cost estimate then was $12 million for construction.

The two-lane macadam scenic toll road would follow the rim of the Pocono Mountain Plateau. It would be developed by private financial houses in New York City at no cost to state taxpayers, Dengler said.

Bonds would be paid off with toll revenues and the road would revert to the commonwealth after it is paid for.

Recently the Pocono Mountain Memorial Parkway Committee has been working to bring it back to life. Members of the committee are Dengler, Michaels, Crowe and J. Russell Eshback, Pike County Republican state representative.

Planning Supported

In other business, the chamber board voted to support and urged participation in a six-week planning course sponsored by the Hamilton Township Civic League and John Withrow, Monroe County agricultural agent, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania State University College of Agriculture.

Withdraw is organizing the course, which requires 30 members to get started.

Industrial Progress

Herbert Axford, regional representative of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, told chamber members at a luncheon after the morning meeting that "things are changing in Monroe County" as industry and resorts grow.

"Even the Inn at Buck Hill Falls has a bar," he said. "And the new Camelback Ski Area will bring lots of new business to your new hospital wing."

He called the Pocono Mountains "the second largest vacationland in the United States," but urged local businessmen to improve Pennsylvania's education to attract new industry.

"Brains attract industry," he said, asserting that Pennsylvania does not get its share of U.S. government industry.

Fires Diminish In County, But Danger Still Imminent

STROUDSBURG — The threat of a destructive fire in tinder - dry Pocono Mountain woodlands continued to be the main concern of fire officials throughout Monroe County.

Luck continued to stay on the side of fire-fighting crews, however, as only two fires were reported in the county yesterday. Fifteen wood fires have been reported in the last six days, none of serious proportions.

General Robinson, district forester, renewed his plea to area residents yesterday to continue to abide by the statewide ban on burning in woods or within 200 feet of wooded areas.

Fire from Marshalls Creek and Bushkill Volunteer Fire Companies yesterday put out a one - acre woods fire, east of Hidden Lake in Middle Smithfield Township. Firemen hauled 3,500 gallons of water from Hidden Lake to extinguish the blaze.

A fire plow from the district forest office in Stroudsburg, plowed a ring around the fire to prevent it from spreading. Forest fire crews remained at the scene last night to guard against any further outbreak of fire, reported Robinson.

Twenty - four firemen and three pieces of equipment were at the fire from the two volunteer companies, according to Ralph Miller, Marshalls Creek fire chief, and George Angie, Bushkill assistant chief.

A ten - acre forest fire behind Rock Lodge Manor in the lower end of Barrett Township was extinguished yesterday by Forest Fire Crew 34 aided by the Barrett Township Volunteer Fire Co., according to Robinson.

Robinson said from all indications the fire was deliberately set. He said a burned streak about 500 yards long and 130 yards deep indicated someone set the fire.

"People who set fires are playing with a potential major holocaust in this dry weather. A deliberately set fire could start the whole Poconos on a blaze," said Robinson.

Four wise rules for investing and how to use them

If you think the key to sensible investing is in the hands of "experts" only, here's an agreeable surprise.

Anybody can quickly learn four basic rules for what never to do—and what always to do—when acquiring stock.

Here they are:

Never get in over your head with money you can't afford to invest.

Always manage your money with an eye on both today and tomorrow. Living expenses have first call on your income. Then comes provision for emergencies. These cared for, you may be ready to consider investing.

Never be careless in choosing your broker.

Always look for a broker in whose experience or training you feel you can have confidence. If you select a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange, for example, you will have the help of a firm subject to Exchange regulations. And of a broker (Registered Representative) who had to meet Exchange qualifications to become a broker in a Member Firm.

Don't expect all Member Firms to be alike. Or brokers to be infallible. Do expect your Member Firm broker to place his firm's knowledge and experience at your service.

Never acquire stock merely on a hunch or a tip.

Always look deeper for facts. Your Member Firm broker often has at his elbow information on the company's financial position. Its earnings. The dividends it pays. Facts like these can be important in helping you make your own careful judgments.

Never ignore the risks of investing.

Always plan your investments with cool care. The wise investor chooses stocks he thinks will fit his needs and circumstances. And he doesn't overlook the relative safety of principal and income that good bonds usually provide. He remembers that prices go down as well as up, that a company may not continue to pay dividends or interest.

But he believes his country is growing, and he intends to grow with it—through sensible investment in good stock. Send the coupon—or drop in at a local Member Firm—for a free copy of "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS," which describes the Monthly Investment Plan through which you can acquire stock with as little as $40 every three months.

Tocks Island Land Boom

The real estate boom in areas around the proposed Tocks Island Dam and National Recreation Area was cited yesterday as a major reason for speed in starting plans and land acquisition for the massive project.

Stroudsburg Attorney Charles R. Bensinger, president of the Delaware River Basin Water Resources Commission, gave that warning yesterday at the annual Delaware water resources conference.

His warning comes from the horse's mouth, so to speak, because Bensinger, as an attorney, has handled some of the biggest real estate transactions in the Tocks Island area.

He knows land values are jumping many times and knows that some of the land being developed may ultimately be purchased or condemned by the U.S. government for development of the National Recreation Area.

His argument is simple arithmetic. If the federal government is going to develop land around the 100-mile shore for recreation purposes, it should purchase that land at the best possible prices.

The real estate boom now in progress in some areas will make that land more and more expensive for the government and taxpayers.

The dam itself has been authorized by Congress. Money for planning and design of the dam has not yet been appropriated, but the federal money and the dam will come sooner or later.

The National Recreation Area has not even been authorized by Congress, and therefore it is a much less certain project in this session of Congress. But it, too, will come sooner or later.

The dam and the recreation area around it will be the first national recreation area in the East. It will and is already causing a major economic revolution in the Pocono Mountain area.

Both projects are valuable and are needed, not only by the Pocono Mountain area, but by the whole metropolitan East Coast. The sooner it gets started the better, and the cheaper it will be.

County Candidates Speak

The League of Women Voters of the Stroudsburgs has again performed a valuable service to Monroe County voters with its questionnaire to all county candidates, Stroud Township, and Stroud Union school district candidates. See story on Page 12.

Only six of 23 candidates questioned by the league failed to state their qualifications and answers to basic questions the general public wants to know.

No answers were received from the Republican candidate for sheriff, one Republican candidate for county auditor, the Republican candidate for Stroud Township supervisor, one Republican candidate for Stroud Union school director and two Democratic candidates for Stroud Union school director.

We cannot understand why they did not feel the public is entitled to know their positions on a few important issues, or their qualifications for office.

The league questionnaire is one of the best opportunities candidates have to say where they stand. If they are not willing to answer a few questions before election we wonder how they will act if they are elected.

The people have a right to know before election where their candidates stand.

Comment Of The Day

A House committee hearing on criticism of a $110,000 loan by the Rural Electrification Administration for development of a ski resort including snow making machines, at Blue Knob Mountain near Altoona, Pa., inspired a member of the audience to write the following sarcastic verse:

'Twas the night before Christmas,
And all through the town,
The streets were all bare

And the fields were all brown.
No sign of a white yule appeared to our eyes
The children were sobbing and eyeing the skies.
The grownups had given up hope it appeared
When up spoke a jolly old man with a beard,
I'll get you some snow, some white
snow, hey, hey,
I'll get it real cheap from the R.E.A."

Banter On A Busride

Put us in the driver's seat. We wished they had. But after traveling 90 some miles in the bus aisle on the way to New York City the "walking" distance was more than comfortable with a course in history and other comments.

There are all types of people riding the jitneys these days. A few are the quiet type that moan at bounces. Others scan newspapers and magazines, while a third category pits a mother against her boy of 10 in a talk about the facts of life. We like the latter best.

Apparently mom's offspring was a genius of some sort. Not the kind that would make the Quiz Kids go into silence but a lad who knew more than mom.

Their dialogue went something like this:
"Son, we are going to get a Thunderbird. It's a nice small car with a roof that comes off. Wouldn't it be nice to travel around the country and look at the beautiful sights above us?"

The lad took a long, hard look at his mother and she knew what he meant. "No we won't buy it this year. You know I had to borrow the money to take this trip. Maybe next year we'll get a compact and take the journey we always wanted."

With that mother inquired of the boy, "What is a molecule?"
"Why do you ask that," the 10-year-old asked. "I haven't answered what a amoeba is yet."

Mother wanted the boy to know that he was a problem child. At least that is what we gathered.

"You know Larry you shouldn't be making this trip," Mom didn't hesitate to say.

"Nobody wants to care for you. You're a pest. Ha. Ha. Ha."

"Larry, why are you eating all the candy?"

"Allright mother here is a piece. Oh, you want two. Now will you stop asking me questions?"

This didn't stop mother. "Larry we are now in Pennsylvania. Wasn't Ben Franklin a nice man?"

"I like Benedict Arnold better," the youth said munching on the last of three pieces of candy.

"By the way mom, did they hang Benedict Arnold?"

"Son, Franklin was a good man."

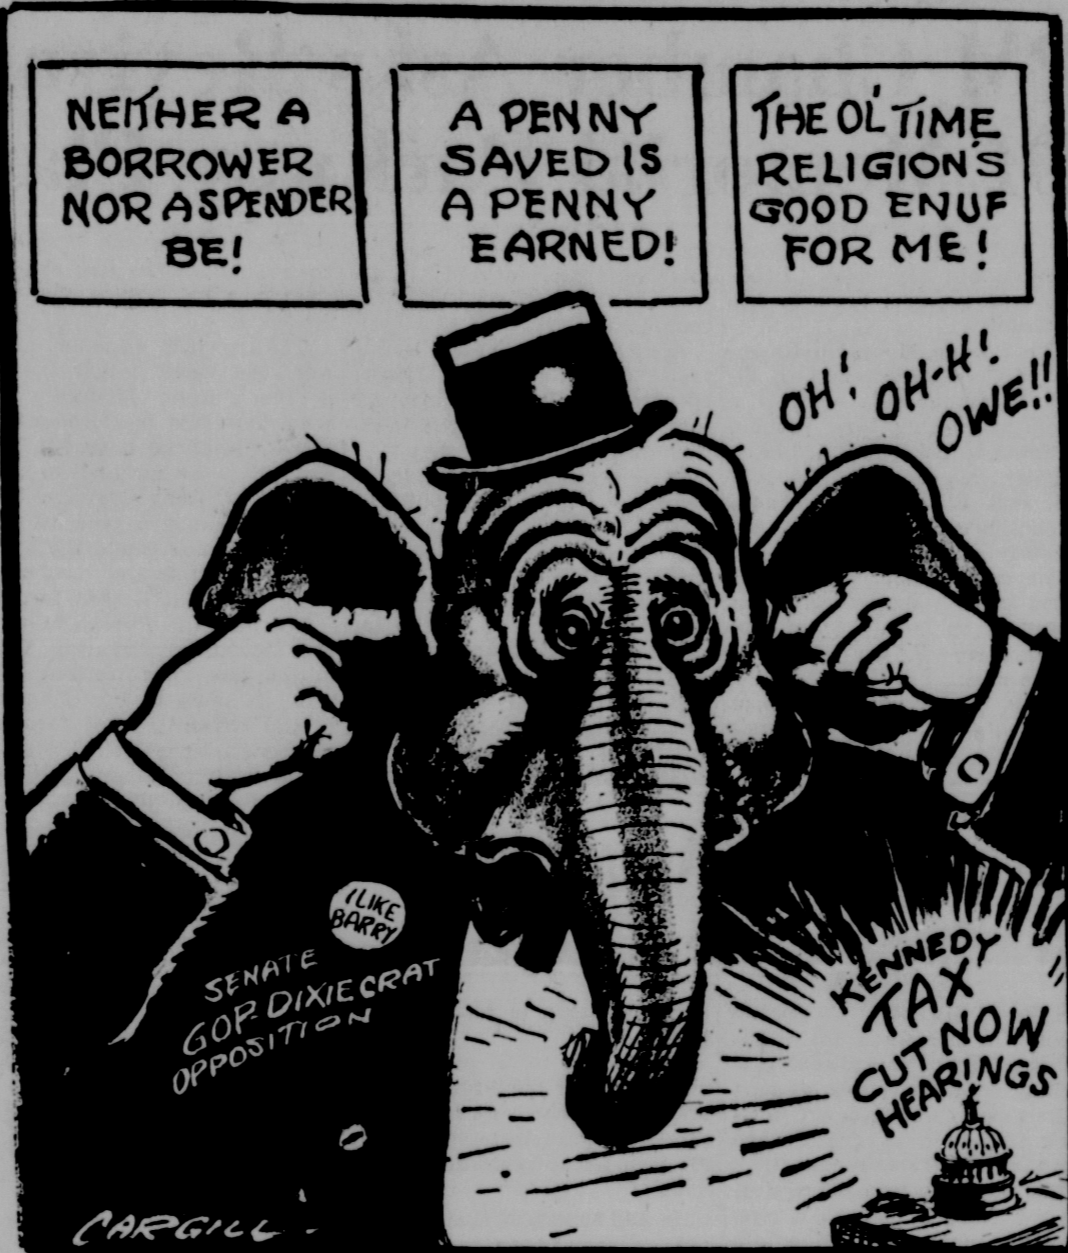

"They named Pennsylvania after William Penn," Larry declared.

"Aren't you smart," mother shouted above the roar of the engine and air conditioner.

"Besides Larry wouldn't you like a Thunderbird and drive around the country?"

"Cut it, Ma. Anyway, the amoeba and molecule are not the same."

There is no continuity to the above. But it reports that people are people anywhere on the face of the earth, whether it be Timbuctoo or Route 46 from Stroudsburg to New York City. Some factual, some just talk, but all coming from humans who really enjoy life.

Plugging In!

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — The trials and tribulations of a newspaper columnist, as noted yesterday by this scribe, oftentimes are quite exasperating, particularly in relation to the sometimes voluminous correspondence of readers.

Such a "crisis" has developed in the case of some columns we managed recently on the question of whether the amendment on the ballot November 5 calling for a constitutional convention to rewrite the present constitution should be approved or defeated.

We took no stand for or against but simply noted what seemed like pertinent facts not heretofore brought out, as for example the fact that the convention would cost in the neighborhood of a million bucks, the 150 elected delegates would receive $3,000 plus travel expenses, etc.

The issue is an important one. The volume of mail we have received both pro and con is striking evidence of a somewhat amazing interest — and intense feeling — which is most unusual for a (normally listless, unfortunately) constitutional amendment.

Illustrative of this are these excerpts from "Letters to the Editor" columns we have selected from two local newspapers. The first is from the Hazleton Standard-Speaker written by Mrs. Kenneth Breeze:

"Mr. Denison writes airily of the one million dollars that it may cost the Pennsylvania taxpayer to rewrite the archaic Pennsylvania constitution.

"Voters . . . and Mr. Denison! . . . would do well to ask, 'What will we get for our money?' Believe me you will get plenty for your investment! As much as one million dollars per year.

"First, excessive financial waste occurs through the cost of financing the state's 1600 municipal authorities. Reason? Since the Pennsylvania Constitution prohibits the state debt and local government borrowing, authorities must be created to handle such things as turnpikes, bridges and badly needed schools.

"Do Pennsylvanians know that the interest rates on authority debts have already cost them over forty million dollars? Do they know that a redundancy of tax collectors in the state . . . allowable through the 1874 constitution . . . are wasting additional thousands through salaries? . . . It would do well for columnists, who are we assume, voters, to ascertain the facts before November 5."

Second "Letter to the Editor" we have selected, this one appearing in the Stroudsburg Daily Record, was written by Mrs. Mervin F. Fontanella, excerpts from which are as follows:

"I have been very grateful to Mason Denison for his writings of September 16, 18 and 30 regarding our Pennsylvania State Constitution.

"There are 150 persons to be chosen to write a new constitution. I do not know who they might be. I am to help pay for their salaries and expenses. I will also help to pay for the office crew necessary to the writing of a new constitution.

"I have at present a local representative in the General Assembly who didn't even vote for financial aid to our own general hospital . . .

"I should gamble on 150 persons I don't know to write a constitution I haven't seen? . . . I know the clauses which need changing in our present state constitution . . . I know the representatives to contact for helping the necessary amendments along the road to success or failure . . . I prefer voting one amendment at a time . . . against a 'pig in the poke'."

We're off for that root beer we mentioned yesterday — but these two "Letters to the Editor" are typical of reaction found by local editors throughout the state. It's good; very good. Whether Pennsylvania shall have a new constitution is appallingly important. Interest should be high!

Answers To Arguments On Constitution Revision

Argument: The people don't want a new constitution. They have voted down a referendum five times.

Answers: Only one of five voters bothered to vote on the question in 1953 when it was defeated and 44 per cent of them favored calling a convention.

A. Pennsylvania has had two constitutional conventions without prior referendum.

B. People can make a far more intelligent choice after all the questions are aired at the convention and they can still hold control by choice of delegates and final approval of a new constitution at the polls.

C. Four former governors, two attorney generals and former chief justice, both present U.S. senators, four law school deans, agree that referendum is unnecessary to call convention.

Red Space Plans

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Russia is secretly preparing to fire a new space shot that will shake the world.

This jarring event, which could lead to tipping the balance of military power from the U.S. to Russia, will be the orbiting of a huge space platform.

The launching of this first space platform is scheduled to take place before the end of 1963 — probably in December. The platform, weighing several tons, is to be put into an orbit 150 to 300 miles above the earth.

That's the jolting intelligence estimate the House Aeronautics & Space Committee has received from administration authorities.

Reliable committee sources report that the estimate bluntly warns the platform will be large enough to house several cosmonauts or nuclear weapons — depending on how the Soviets plan to use their deadly space vehicle.

One of the most exciting technological aspects of this space exploration will be the maneuvering by other Russian satellites to pick up and take off cosmonauts from the platform.

Already, the Soviets have succeeded in bringing two manned satellites within six miles of each other in space — a major feat that the U.S. has not been able to accomplish.

U.S. Intelligence experts stress that the Soviet space platform launching is definitely a forerunner to a Russian moon shot. The latter is expected to take place in 1967 — the 50th anniversary of the U.S.S.R. — and three full years before the target date for the U.S. moon landing.

A worldwide propaganda buildup for this Russian space spectacular is about to get underway, according to U.S. Intelligence sources.

These experts in Soviet plans report that within the past five weeks an Sunday newspaper supplements was invited to Moscow and given photographs of the U.S.S.R. moon program — pictures never before shown outside of high Soviet circles.

The editor, a leading advocate of U.S.-Russian cooperation in communications and weather, is planning an article plugging for more U.S.-Soviet space cooperation — including the joint moon program advocated by President Kennedy.

Action and Reaction — The Russian space platform will have major military significance, although Moscow and Washington can be expected to play down this aspect in order not to upset their toothless proposal renouncing the orbiting of nuclear weapons in outer space.

Academician Anatoly A. Blagonravov, chairman of the Commission on Exploration and Utilization of Outer Space of the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R., recently revealed the military use of these platforms to a group of U.S. scientists and officials.

In discussing U.S.-Soviet disarmament moves in outer space, General Blagonravov frankly reported:

"Rockets and space vehicles designed for space flights and research should continue to be developed since mankind has already made miraculous progress in space research, and man being intent on further developing this action will realize his most daring dreams.

"Space rocket production inspection is not difficult to organize. Yet, to replace the capsule with scientific instruments by a nuclear warhead is not a difficult operation, either. Such conversion of a research rocket, satellite or space platform into a military one can be easily concealed from inspection."

General Blagonravov, the Soviet's top missile expert, was the principal negotiator for the Kremlin in reaching an accord this summer on U.S.-Soviet cooperation in exchanging weather and communication satellite information and technical data.

Washington Fallout — Since the first earth satellite ushered in the age of space flight, the U.S. and Russia have attempted a total of over 200 space flight missions . . . The House Space Committee is investigating a North American Aviation research contract with the National Aeronautics & Space Administration whose costs soared by $36.6 percent during a two-year period. According to committee probes, the North American contract was awarded in 1960 for the development of a liquid hydrogen cooled jet nozzle for KIWI, the experimental atomic space reactor. First estimate of the contract was $235,185. When the research contract was terminated two years and many problems later, "overruns" or added expenses, had boosted the cost to $2,202,812 or 836.6 per cent of the original estimate . . . Washington circles are buzzing with the news that Princess Grace of Monaco is about to enter the grand society of yachting. According to administration insiders, Her Highness will be an active competitor with Aristotele Onassi, the Greek shipping magnate, for visits from Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Princess Grace will take delivery early next spring of an eye-catching luxury motor yacht, the Abercane II. The yacht is 131 feet long.

Dear Abby

Your Place Is At Home, Dear!

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are having an argument and have agreed to let you settle it. I made plans to go deer hunting from December 13th through December 22nd. My wife is expecting her second baby on December 14th, and she wants me to be home to take her to the hospital. Our first baby came two weeks late, and I have a hunch this one will, too. My wife says she has a hunch this one will be on time. If I am needed, I can get back home in 12 hours. I can't change the date of the trip because I am going with two other men and all the plans are set. Don't you think I should plan to go?

DEER HUNTER

DEAR DEER HUNTER: Tell your friends to go without you. A deer in the cradle is worth two on the fender.

ALL BROKEN UP

DEAR BROKEN: Double your efforts to be everything a man wants in a wife. Nagging, reprimanding and coolness will only give him good reason to turn his attentions elsewhere again. Tell him you forgive him and then really forgive him, and put it out of your mind.

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Having two different colored eyes occurs only occasionally in man and beast — and in birds, too. (Not fish — their eyes are colorless.) It's a freak of nature, indicating that the color chromosomes went a little wild.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and my husband is 26. We have three lovely children who

Speaking Of Your Health:

The Magic Number Is Five

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The population explosion re-sounded recently with an unprecedented series of multiple births, all anxious to join the human race at the same time. Quintuplets in Venezuela were followed in rapid succession by quadruplets in Iran and in Mississippi. Triplets born in Texas and in Switzerland raised only a mild flurry of excitement. Numerous twins born throughout the world, alas, barely caused a raised eyebrow.

Suddenly each proud community was involved in a "race for space" to house the quads and quint.

U.S. Quintuplets The world had barely settled down to a normal state of expansion when another population explosion was reported. Quintuplets were born in South Dakota.

All this in a period of two weeks!

Twins are always greeted enthusiastically. Triplets are unusual enough to deserve newspaper coverage. Quads, of course, are rapturously welcomed, but even they are soon allowed to take normal places in the realm of reality.

Magic Number But the magic number is five! The parents of quintuplets are barely allowed the luxury of counting and of adding them to the family total before they are unofficially adopted by township, city, state and nation.

Since quintuplet births occur only once in every 54,000-60,000 births, there is an understandable reason for such rejoicing.

Multiple births have always been of extreme interest to doctors and geneticists. Twins are born in one out of 80 pregnancies; triplets about one in 8,000; quads, one in 500,000; quintos one in 54,000,000.

There are two distinct classifications of multiple births: identical and non-identical (also called "fraternal"). They are distinguished genetically by the fact that identical births are the result of fertilization of a single ovum or egg.

For reasons not entirely explained, the fertilized egg divides into two or more parts that grow and develop as separate and complete human beings. These babies are truly identical. They look exactly alike. Their sex is always the same.

Two Classifications Non-identical or fraternal, births occur when two or more female eggs or ova are fertilized, independent of each other. Fraternal children may be of different sexes and resemble each other no more than sisters and brothers.

There is a suggestive hereditary background in twins. This tendency should not be a dis-suader, for it does not hold equally for triplets, quads and quint.

Almost all multiple births have some degree of prematurity. It should be noted that a premature baby is not necessarily one that is born before its estimated time of arrival.

Any baby that weighs less than five pounds at birth is considered a "preemie," even if born at full term. These light-weights need extra safety precautions during the first few weeks of their lives.

Remarkable Devices All "preemies" are surrounded by remarkable devices and special equipment. Complex incubators maintain ideal body temperature and humidity. Oxygen is supplied, sometimes under pressure, depending on the needs of the child.

Nurses and personnel are specially trained to give today's premature babies the greatest advantages for survival, and for good physical and emotional health.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Try and Stop Me --by Bennet Cerf

John Straley tells of a young Irishman who began making good money, and was persuaded to open a checking account in the local bank. At the end of the month he received his first statement and batch of cancelled checks. "This fine bank we've got here," he nodded approvingly. "I thought I'd see a big bad of money, but I spent the bank got every one of my checks back for me!"

Morris Fishbein tells of a man who bought his wife a piano for Christmas, but by Valentine's Day had persuaded her to switch to clarinet. "How come?" asked a friend. "Well," was the explanation, "when she's playing the clarinet, she can't sing."

Windstorms in Kansas? Former Governor Alf Landon tells of one that was a whooper. At its height, a farmer was seen driving a combine lickety-split down the State highway. "Where ya goin', Jeff?" called a neighbor anxiously. The farmer called back, "I planted that wheat and I'm going to harvest it if I have to chase it all the way to Mexico!"

A distinguished young man-about-town was driving his sports car at a cool eight miles an hour when an uncooperative motorcycle cop flagged him down and demanded to see his license. He looked it over carefully, then barled, "Besides, everything else, you're supposed to be wearing eyeglasses." "Think nothing of it, officer," "I've got contacts." "I don't give a darn who you know," declared the cop righteously. "You're getting a ticket anyhow."

Along about the year 1500 or so, an irreverent Italian legend has it, a young girl in Milan beseeched a famous artist, she knew to paint her portrait. "I'm far too busy," he is purported to have told her. "Why not ask that fellow Da Vinci across the courtyard, Mona? He needs the business!"

The original titles of four of the biggest musical hits in Broadway history, recall Dick Lewand and Alfred Simon, in their definitive "Encyclopedia of Theater Music" were: 1. Lady Fair; 2. Smarty; 3. All's Fair; and 4. Away We Go! Do you know what they were called when they opened in New York? (Answers: 1. The Desert Song; 2. unny Face; 3. By Jupiter; 4. Oklahoma.)

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

A weekend spent doing exactly what you want to do may not advance world peace except in so far as it advances your own inner peace but it sure is nice to look back on.

For Marty Baldwin who saw his grandson and namesake play in his first football game up in Horsehead, N.Y., and not only that but saw the team win its first game of the season and young Marty catch an end zone pass for a touchdown. Bet the Baldwins found it more exciting than all the big college games they've been attending this year.

For Katie Fellenner it wasn't so nice a trip; by ambulance to the hospital. If she could have visitors I'd be tempted to tell her that that's getting out of presenting the program at the DAR on Monday the hard way, especially since she'd had the program all arranged anyway.

For the AAUW delegates Ruth Black, Wendy Mazer and Laura Evans it was a worthwhile trip to the conference in Lansdowne on Saturday and for Dr. Lura's new dog, Pokey, the lonely hours at home were put to good use chewing up a card table top.

For me, I found inspiration in Dr. Laurence C. Jones' stories of the Piney Woods School in Mississippi, and in the man himself who at 79 is a vigorous speaker and has a simple yet telling message "If you pray as if everything depended on God and work as if everything depended on you, there's no reason why you can't succeed".

I found the strange world of new highways and feeder lines, back doors and back meadows, hidden ravines and isolated houses suddenly finding themselves on the tourists' Main St.

And for the first time, East Stroudsburg really felt like a college town on a football weekend. For the casual visitor in other years, the college and its activities were isolated. With increased size has come increased spirit in the form of floats and bonfires and people; with the fraternity houses some of that spirit is spilling out of the campus and into the town.

Most of us felt a little guilty about the fine weather when we need rain so badly but it wouldn't have wetted a single lawn not to have enjoyed every minute of it.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Certain departments magnetize me. Cosmetics, for one... jewelry, for another... gifts, housewares, and fashions, of course. But none seems to exert the same powerful pull of a mere tableful of books. I may lecture myself into accepting the fact that I can't afford to buy... but nothing can keep me from stopping, studying the array, and leafing through those volumes of particular interest. That's why I lingered so long in our receiving room the other day when our sale books were being ticketed.

If I had scads of money, I am sure I would buy one of everything... the cook books are so varied and informative, I could never possibly turn them down. I can just picture them neatly arranged on a shelf in the kitchen. I might by pass the Civil War books... war in any shape or form is so upsetting. I automatically skip over all reference to it—but I'd certainly have one of every volume dedicated to the houses and cabinet making of Early America, the clocks of Pennsylvania, the ghosts abiding in plantations along the Mississippi, the gingerbread architecture of the Victorian era. Two other books, over which I have spent stolen half-hours, are devoted to a pictorial history of radio from the days of the old crystal set to the present, and a collection of memories, both photographic and literary, from the '20s and '30s lifted from the pages of the then popular magazine, Vanity Fair.

After paying tribute to Samuel Morse who made it all possible, the radio book continues its entertaining story of progress and shows approximately 400 pictures of entertainers who were loved by radio audiences through the years. These include a very young, attractive Vincent Lopez, Ed Wynn in his Fire Chief hat, an amazingly SLENDER Paul Whiteman, a painfully wistful Bertha Brainerd, "the first lady of radio," Milton Cross, who was once so familiar to local residents through his visits to the Teeter family, a voluptuous Vaughn de Leath, Weber and Fields, Lindbergh, "Roxy," Elsie Janis, Amos 'n Andy, Sir Harry Lauder (whom Wyckoff travelers met on the first Wyckoff Travel Bureau excursion to New York), The Goldbergs, impish Will Rogers, FDR, Rudy Vallee, Alexander Woolcott, controversial Father Coughlin, Alice Faye, Fred Allen and Portland, his wife, feuding with Jack Benny and wife, Mary... and many, many more!

Many of these old favorites are gone now... but hundreds of others, no longer young, no longer so active, continue to make us laugh or cry, depending upon their individual talents. To all of them, I think, we are grateful for bringing entertainment into our living rooms, and widening our outlook into the greater world which television now brings into our living rooms.

As for the "Vanity Fair" cavalcade—it is filled with memories for me. There is a scene from "Victoria Regina" starring Helen Hayes—the first Broadway play I ever saw, and one that made me theatre-conscious forevermore; there are the poems of Dorothy Parker who, with her husband, sat next to me the night I saw the incomparable Raymond Massey as "Abe Lincoln in Illinois;" there are photographs of Gene Tunney, who stole my heart when I was a kid and he was training here to knock the heavyweight crown from the brow of Jack Dempsey, whom I recently interviewed for a Wyckoff radio program and found most intelligent and charming;... of Ethel Barrymore who looked queen-like in purple and sable when she autographed my theatre program—(so regal was she I almost curtsied)... and of Eleanor Roosevelt whose features were so easily caricatured, but whose charm was an immeasurable as her capacity for work. I still wonder why she granted so much time so generously to me.

These two sale volumes I would treasure. And many other volumes would have just as much meaning for you, I am sure. Why not come in and "browse our books"?

'Kicking' End Quits Tech 11

By MIKE BARRON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech end Ted Davis resigned from the school's football team Monday after publicly apologizing for kicking Auburn halfback David Rawson in the face in last Saturday's 29-21 Auburn victory.

Auburn Coach Ralph Jordan told The Associated Press in Atlanta where he was making a speech that he was sorry Davis had resigned.

"We had hoped he would continue on the team," Jordan said. "He doesn't owe us an apology. David (Rawson) holds no ill toward him."

Davis said he was quitting the team to save Tech the "embarrassment of kicking me off the football squad."

"I hope David Rawson will try to forgive this terrible thing that I did in anger," the senior lineman continued. "I pray that God will help me to control my emotions in the future."

Accepts Resignation

Coach Bobby Dodd, while praising Davis' forthrightness in facing "his mistake," accepted the end's resignation and said that Davis will play no more football at Tech. Davis will remain in school take his degree at next commencement.

Davis said his actions "violated every standard that Coach Dodd sets for his football players."

"Of course, I cannot condon what Ted did in the football game Saturday and like all of us at Georgia Tech I am sorry it happened," Dodd said. "I am proud of Ted this morning that he had the courage to face his mistake publicly."

"All of us at one time or another do things that we are ashamed of," Dodd continued, "but few of us have the misfortune to make our mistake with 53,000 people looking on."

Davis was ejected from the game after the incident and Tech was penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct. The penalty, the only one Tech received in the game, set up an Auburn field goal.

Rawson was reported much improved at Emory University Hospital. Dr. Edgar P. Fincher, Rawson's physician, said he is "perfectly all right" and that vomiting is his only symptom.

Doctors made extensive tests to determine that the 20-year-old Rawson had not suffered permanent damage. They said the Pensacola, Fla., junior had recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital Monday.

The loss of Davis is a severe blow to Tech's football chances. Dodd has called the 21-year-old Memphis, Tenn., senior one of the best college ends in the country.

All Brains Formula For Winning Unit

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP)—Earlham College's Quakers, winners of 19 straight football games, turn the other cheek only when they feint to the left and run right, or vice versa.

Since young Jerry Huntsman took over the team in 1961, the only quaking has been done by opponents.

The Earlham team, also known as the Maroons, lost its second game under Huntsman, 30, 1961. It hasn't been beaten since.

Earlham has gained its 19 straight victories, tying Carthage of Illinois for the nation's longest winning string. And it has done it without benefit of athletic scholarships.

"The lack of athletic scholarships," says Huntsman, "makes it necessary to hunt for athletes smart enough to win academic scholarships, and this has its advantages. In three seasons here, I have lost only two boys on grades."

"We also have a squad of boys who are playing football because they enjoy it. This particular bunch enjoys it most when they're winning—and they work at it."

Earlham plays only the small-college football schools. Winning 'em all, however, isn't easy in any league.

Sheepdogs Take Top Show Honors

EFFORT — Two Shetland Sheepdog puppies, owned by Mrs. Constance Hubbard, garnered top honors over the weekend at the Gloucester County Kennel Club Show in Clarksboro, N.J., and the South Jersey Kennel Club Show in Vineland, N.J.

At Gloucester Astolat Rock n' Roll, an 8-month-old male, placed first in the puppy class and first in the winners division which gave him 3 points toward his championship.

He also took the Best Opposite Sex award, while his 7-month-old kennel mate, Astolat Peggy of Faunbrook, placed first in the female puppy class and was awarded reserve winners.

At Vineland the placings were reversed with "Rock n' Roll" taking reserve winners, while "Peggy" took first and winners, best of winners and best opposite sex awards.

On the previous weekend "Peggy" was shown at the Penn Treaty Match Show in Media, where she took first in her class and was awarded Best of Breed and went on to win first in the puppy working group.

Tittle (14) sends the Giants into a third period lead over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday at Yankee Stadium with a 13-yard touchdown pass over the reach of George Andrie (66) and into the arms of Phil King (21). Other players are Guy Reese (68) of Dallas and Bookie Bolin (63), Greg Larson (53), Alex Webster (29) and Roosevelt Brown (79) of Giants. New York won, 37-21. (AP Wirephoto)

Longhorns No. 1 College Eleven

By HUGH FULLETON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the second straight week Texas reigns as the No. 1 team in college football—by a margin somewhat more overwhelming than the Longhorns' victory over Arkansas.

Texas beat Arkansas by only four points, 17-13, Saturday in a game that could have been the deciding factor in the always-close Southwest Conference race. In Monday's voting of 53 members of The Associated Press panel of sports writers and broadcasters to name the top ten college teams, Texas outdistanced second place Wisconsin 50-3 in first place votes and 527-470 on points.

Pittsburgh retained third place in the rankings with 383 points on the basis of 10 for each first place ballot, nine for second and eight for third. Texas and Wisconsin monopolized the first place voting and most of the seconds. All three voters who put Wisconsin on top listed Texas second and the Badgers, despite their 10-7 close call with Iowa, weren't rated lower than fourth by anyone.

Upset Victims

Two teams ranked among the first ten a week ago were upset victims last Saturday and dropped clear out of the rankings. Ohio State, previously tied for Illinois, lost its fourth place after a 32-3 beating by Southern California and Georgia Tech, formerly eighth, went down following a 29-26 loss to Auburn.

Illinois moved up from seventh to fourth, Mississippi retained fifth place and Alabama advanced from ninth to sixth as Oklahoma dropped a notch to seventh. Auburn, the only newcomer to the top ten, moved into the eighth spot, followed by Northwestern and Navy, which had been tied for 10th a week ago.

Most of the top ten teams played close games last Saturday and most of them have tough opposition coming up with the Pitt-Navy game the top event. Pitt barely outlasted West Virginia and Navy only beat Virginia Military 21-12.

Texas tackles another strong Southwest foe, Rice, Saturday night and Wisconsin meets Ohio State, Illinois, 16-6 winner over Minnesota, plays UCLA at Los Angeles Friday night. Mississippi, which trimmed Tulane 21-0, faces another of the South-eastern Conference rear guard, Vanderbilt. Alabama, 35-0 winner over Tennessee, meets Houston, loser of five straight.

Oklahoma, which had to go all out to beat Kansas 21-18, goes against somewhat weaker Kansas State. Auburn has an open date before meeting Florida. Northwestern, fresh from a 37-6 breeze against Miami of Ohio, takes on Michigan State.

South Africa Turns Deaf Ear On IOC

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—Despite the International Olympic Committee's call for South Africa to end racialism in sports before the end of this year, the government meantime is standing by its previously enforced apartheid in sports.

Interior Minister Sen. Johannes de Klerk declined Monday to comment on the IOC's decision, but he recalled the government's policy on mixed races in sports had been clearly set out in statements issued by him this year and in 1962.

In these statements, the minister said the government could not approve of teams from this republic taking part in world sports events being composed of whites and nonwhites and foreign teams so composed could not be allowed entry to South Africa.

Separate teams of different racial groups from South Africa could, however, participate in international meetings against states of other races. Within the republic's borders, whites must compete against whites and nonwhites against nonwhites, the minister had ruled.

Sports administrators have interpreted the IOC's ultimatum as the virtual deathknell of South Africa's participation in the Olympic Games, the Johannesburg Star said.

Record Set At ESSC

By MR. PIGSKIN

There couldn't have been a finer Homecoming Day anywhere in the country than the one at East Stroudsburg State College Saturday afternoon. More than 5,000 persons—the largest ESSC Homecoming attendance in history—witnessed history in the making.

Toby Barkman, a 180-pound senior halfback and prime candidate for Little All-America honors, was the historian. The lad from Chester, N.J., who now lives in the Poconos, scored two touchdowns to set a new record of 186 points in the Pennsylvania State Colleges Football Conference.

He was, indeed, the Chief of the Warriors that fine Indian Summer day.

The Cyclone has died at sea. That's West Chester's Joe (The Cyclone) Iacono who graduated last year with 180 points under his belt. Barkman broke his mark in spectacular fashion.

It was a fourth-period pass play which re-wrote the record book. ESSC's quarterback Charlie Sierer dropped back for the "big bomb" which exploded in the face of visiting downfield, broke to his right and took the aerial over his shoulder to flash down the sideline on a 62-yard scoring play to complete the 34-6 rout of the Mountaineers.

Coach Jack Gregory's Warriors are now 3-2 for the season. They have won three straight (two of them without the valuable services of Barkman who was injured three weeks against West Chester) following two successive losses at the start of the season.

Barkman twisted his knee in the West Chester game. And, last week, Sierer was out of action with a wrenched knee.

It was somewhat ironic, then, that it was these two who combined on the play which gave Toby his record-smashing score.

Although the story belonged to Barkman because of his record-breaking achievement, the Warriors actually demolished Mansfield through a splendid team effort.

There was Jan Beliveau, Henry Mowery and Sierer to help Toby in the offense backfield, and there was Mel Fager, Joe Bahatka, Larry Helwig and Jeff Forsythe who were instrumental figures on defense.

It was, in every sense of the word, a team victory. But the glory, nonetheless, belonged to Barkman. It was he who broke the record.

yard run in the third period at St. Louis. A fist-swinging incident developed. Hill was ejected. John Roach took over for Starr.

Packers' Starr Suffers Fracture

By DAVE OHARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay's hopes for an unprecedented third straight National Football League title were dealt a severe blow Monday when X rays disclosed that quarterback Bart Starr suffered a fractured right hand in the St. Louis Cardinals game Sunday.

Coach Vince Lombardi said Starr suffered a "hairline fracture" in the hand and will be sidelined indefinitely. He declined comment on a report that Starr will be sidelined for possibly six weeks.

Starr, who was the NFL's top passer last season, was injured when he was tackled and bounced out of bounds by the Cards' Jimmy Hill after a 15-

"Kicked Him"

Hill said after the Packers' 30-7 victory that Starr had kicked him while both were on the ground. He said he apologized to Starr before leaving the game.

"It happened so fast, I don't know what happened," the 29-year-old Starr said.

Lombardi declined comment on future plans, but it appeared that the 30-year-old Roach would take charge in Starr's absence.

The Packers also have rookie Terry Zang of Drake University on their "taxi" squad and may activate him.

Starr went into seclusion after X rays disclosed the fracture at St. Vincent's Hospital.

Starr, a former Alabama ace, had carried the ball only five times this season before he saw the opening and took off against the Cardinals.

Won Five Straight

Despite a mediocre start this year, Starr has directed Green Bay to five straight triumphs after a 10-3 upset by the Chicago Bears in a league opener. The Packers moved into a tie for the lead with Chicago after the Bears' defeat by San Francisco Sunday.

He connected on 7 of 14 passes before being injured. That gave him a record of 69 completions in 136 attempts for 951 yards and 8 touchdowns this year.

Roach, a former Southern Methodist star, has served as Starr's understudy since 1961. He formerly played with the Chicago-St. Louis Cardinals.

He appeared briefly in eight games with the Packers in 1962, connecting on 3 of 11 passes for 33 yards. In three appearances this year, he has hit on 4 of 7 passes for 33 yards.

Senior Men's Net Titlists

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Lyle McCannon of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Monte Ganger of Cleveland, Ohio, won the National Senior Men's Tennis Doubles Championship Monday.

In a match that began Sunday and was carried over into Monday, McCannon and Ganger defeated a Portland, Ore., pair, James Hodgkins and Ed Leonard, 3-6, 7-5, 9-7.

Bernard Clinton of Dallas upset top-seeded Joseph Lipshutz of Philadelphia, 9-7, 6-3, Sunday for the singles championship.

Players 55 years of age or older competed in the weeklong tournament.

Millersville Gets NCAA Warning

CHICAGO (AP) — The NCAA lifted the probation of Tennessee Tech and reprimanded the University of Wichita and Millersville State College of Pennsylvania Monday for rules infractions.

Tennessee Tech, a member of the Ohio Valley Conference, had been on probation since October 1961, for recruiting violations. The NCAA Infractions Committee recommended that Tennessee Tech's full rights and privileges of membership in the NCAA be restored Thursday.

This move was approved by the NCAA policy-making council.

Wichita was given a reprimand and censure by the council for violating recruiting provisions by using the services of a professional talent scout in New York.

Game Not Certified

The council said Millersville, with an enrollment of 2,100, permitted its athletic director and football coach to help conduct a high school all-star football game last August. The game was not certified by either the appropriate state high school association or the NCAA.

The college also permitted the use of its facilities for practice sessions for the game, the report added.

The NCAA council, in the reprimand and censure, said the college executive administration has ended its connection with the game until it obtains certification.

Pennsylvania's Constitution

Criticism Of Constitution Has Built Up For Years

(Editors Note: Pennsylvania's voters, for the sixth time in the past 50 years, are being asked to call a constitutional convention to rewrite the state's basic law, adopted in 1874. Five times they have responded with a resounding "NO". Will their answer be the same this year? This is the first of three articles explaining the referendum; its opponents and their thinking; its proponents and their activity).

Part I — The Legislation.

By VINCENT P. CAROCI

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's 89-year-old constitution has been in effect since 1874, and over the years, more and more criticism has been raised against it.

Five times — 1891, 1921, 1924, 1935 and 1953 — the voters have been asked to call a convention to rewrite the document.

Five times the answer has been no.

This year the people are asked again: "Do you favor a constitutional convention to prepare a new constitution subject to ratification by a vote of the people?"

You vote either yes or no. It's as simple as that.

How will the people vote?

Many persons in positions close to the public pulse say the referendum is doomed to defeat once again.

Yet those who are working for passage of the question say they are surprised at the favorable reaction their private soundings have received to date.

Far From Won

They are far from confident. They acknowledge the battle is far from won. They refuse however, to believe the situation is as hopeless as critics would have them believe.

The people will supply the answer Nov. 5.

What happens if they say yes?

According to legislation enacted by the 1963 General Assembly, a convention of 150 delegates would convene July 1 of next year to begin its business.

Delegates would be chosen at the May, 1964, primary election on the basis of the state's 50 state senatorial districts as outlined by "the reapportionment act most recently adopted prior to Feb. 1, 1964."

The citizen will vote for two candidates. The three candidates receiving the highest vote will be elected as delegates, thus assuring minority political representation at the convention.

Independents

Independent candidates may run for a delegate seat.

The convention is charged with completing its business by Jan. 15, 1965.

The new constitution then would be placed before the voters for final approval in the general election of 1965.

Some reasonable and logical questions are being raised about ratification. Particularly, what happens if the voters reject the new document?

The simple truth is that all the time, effort and, most important-antly the money spent on, in and by the convention, will be wasted.

What will the convention cost?

Over $1 Million

The best estimate—and it's a conservative one—is that it will go over the $1 million mark.

Each delegate will be paid $3,000. That's $450,000 right there. He also is entitled to traveling expenses of 10 cents a mile.

There are other expenses, too. The convention is empowered to hire a complete legal, clerical and technical staff, plus "purchase, rent or lease office supplies, equipment, telephones, telegraph..." and other material necessary to carry out its business.

It is only natural for people to ask if it is worth the expense to rewrite the constitution only to have it rejected by the people.

Well, the amendment process is costly, too.

Figures show that 23 proposed amendments were advertised between 1959-62 at a total cost of $150,198.

Only five of these amendments passed, which puts their average advertising cost at $30,000 each.

Rewriting the constitution—by convention or amendment—simply is a costly business.

Tomorrow—The Opponents.

Local Lions Meet Tonight

STRODSBURG — All members of the Stroudsburg Lion's Club have been urged to attend tonight's meeting by Jack Bohan, public relations chairman.

The meeting is the first of semi-monthly meetings recently voted for by the club's directors. The final outcome of the semi-monthly meetings will depend on attendance during the test period.

At last week's meeting Lion Leslie Martin gave a talk on "Germany as I Saw It." He gave his impressions of Germany when he was living there representing his company.

Lions Harold Miller and Harvey Burrus were honored for having tied for high salesmen in the recent fund-raising activities. They were given several choices of Lion's emblems.
